Configurations

We'll be using a model trained on the MS-COCO dataset. The configurations of this model are in the CocoConfig class in coco.py.

For inferencing, modify the configurations a bit to fit the task. To do so, sub-class the CocoConfig class and override the attributes you need to change.

Class Names

The model classifies objects and returns class IDs, which are integer value that identify each class. Some datasets assign integer values to their classes and some don't. For example, in the MS-COCO dataset, the 'person' class is 1 and 'teddy bear' is 88. The IDs are often sequential, but not always. The COCO dataset, for example, has classes associated with class IDs 70 and 72, but not 71.

To improve consistency, and to support training on data from multiple sources at the same time, our Dataset class assigns it's own sequential integer IDs to each class. For example, if you load the COCO dataset using our Dataset class, the 'person' class would get class ID = 1 (just like COCO) and the 'teddy bear' class is 78 (different from COCO). Keep that in mind when mapping class IDs to class names.

To get the list of class names, you'd load the dataset and then use the `class_names` property like this.

#Load COCO dataset
dataset = coco.CocoDataset() dataset.load_coco(COCO_DIR, "train") dataset.prepare()

Print class names
print(dataset.class_names)

We don't want to require you to download the COCO dataset just to run this demo, so we're including the list of class names below. The index of the class name in the list represent its ID (first class is 0, second is 1, third is 2, ...etc.)

In [0]:

Conclusion

- Performing Instance Segmentation on Indian driving dataset
- I'm performed using the Mask_RCNN
- in order to do that you need to install some tools
- and also clone Mask_RCNN and coco tools for segmentation
- so this whole thing i performed on google colab
- firstly i checked the GPU on google colab(if its enable or not if not enable it)
- Then i install cython and utils
- and clone the coco tools and install setuptools and setup coco tools
- and then clone the Mask_RCNN
- before that you have to load the weights of Mask_RCNN
- after that configure the coco tools
- and created model and load train weights
- next i given class names
- after that i load the single image from idd dataset
- then we got output which detected the image labels
- and after that i given all images (which i already combined them into video)
- then its detected all the images
- so after that i combined them into video
- with Mask_RCNN we can detect all the images labels.
